What careers might this help with?

delivery driver

A delivery driver is someone who brings parcels and packages from one place to another. They might drive a van or a lorry and deliver things to homes, schools, and shops. They use a map or sat nav to find the right address, and they make sure the parcels are safe and delivered to the correct person.

office administrator

An office administrator is someone who helps an office run smoothly and uses maths to help keep things organised. They might count and check how many forms or letters are needed, sort information into the right folders, and use a calendar to plan days and tell the time for meetings. They make sure everything is organised, so everyone can do their job properly.
